HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act; the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every sitting man or woman in the lands is fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of these organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day living and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially these parts which are diseased. If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption, but this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills is caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

These facts, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, many have thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

COUNTRY CHILDREN.

Little fresh violets;
Born in the wildwood
Sweetly illustrating
Innocent childhood;
Shy as the antelope—
Brown as a berry—
Free as the mountain air,
Romping and merry.

Blue eyes and hazel eyes
Peep from under the hedges,
Shaded by sun-bonnets,
Frayed at the edges;
Up in the apple trees,
Heedless in danger,
Manhood in embryo,
Stares at the stranger.

Out in the lilly patch,
Seeking the berries—
Under the orchard trees,
Feasting on cherries—
Tramping the clover blooms
Down 'mong the grasses,
No voice to hinder them,
Dear lads and lasses!

No grim propriety—
No interdiction;
Free as the birdlings
From city restrictions!
Coining the purest blood,
Strength'ning each muscle,
Donning health armor
'Gainst life's coming bustle!

Dear little innocents;
Born in the wild wood;
Oh! that all little ones
Had such a childhood!
God's blue spread over them,
God's green beneath them,
No sweeter heritage
Could we bequeath them!

The Real and the Ideal.

Subjoined is an eloquent extract from an address delivered by. Col. A. K. McClure, before the literary societies of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa, August 3d, '70:

"How brightly the ideal portrays the triumphs of statesmanship! How the student's heart quickens as he reads of the giants who have swayed Senates and nations, and who have left enduring monuments of their greatness in their political achievements! They tower above their fellows on the pages of history, as if they had been created unlike other men. But history is forgetful of their great deeds, and their virtues alone survive them. They all have dreamed, and vainly dreamed, as have the humblest of their followers. They hoped, attained, and suffered more, and there the distinction ends. I speak of Henry Clay with reverence. He was the idol of my boyhood, and his name is linked with the grateful memories of the season when we invest greatness with the perfection of human attributes.—He was beloved, even idolized, by his partisans. It would seem as if he had been born to test the measure of affection that could be lavished upon a popular leader by a free people. Others have been esteemed; have aroused a nation's gratitude; have commanded the sober approval of the country, or have been borne upward upon sweeping tides; but who, fallen and powerless, was followed to the close of his eventful life with such sincere and profound affection? He was great in all the great qualities of man, and yet he was but a child of larger stature. You will read of his victories—of his life, that seemed to be but one continued ovation—of his matchless eloquence in behalf of human liberty in every clime, and of his heroic pacification of our sectional estrangements. He was honored with every official trust, save the one he most desired. His ideal achievement was to be chosen ruler of the people who loved him. It was the sweet dream of half of his allotted days. It seemed even just within his reach, and yet was ever lost. Twice in his riper life his principles triumphed in national contests; but others were made his leaders, and wore the wreaths his tact and statesmanship had woven for his party. Never was a life so full of hope; never was the ideal so rich in promise; and never were disappointments more filled with bitterness.—When you have read of his brilliant career, turn to the sad sequel in Colton's compilation of his private correspondence, and the bright picture is blotted out in the painful realization of a great life with its great ideal destiny overthrown.

"Another name is immortal in the nation's pride and shared its affections. Webster was our profoundest statesman a score of years before his death. He crushed out a gigantic crime by a single appeal to the Senate. It will be enduring as time in the annals of rhetorical victories. He, too, was Commoner, Senator, and Premier; but was not what he most ardently hoped to be. His ideal destiny was plainly written in his later years, and his life went out in harrowing disappointment. He had defeated Hayne and the threatened dismemberment of the Union, and the whole world confessed the preeminence of his fame. He had answered Hulseman in behalf of the rights of man, and thrones trembled; but he was not President. His dreams ended, and in a few fretful days he slept with his fathers.

"Calhoun was distinctively a representative man. He was sincere, profound, subtle, and was worshipped by his adherents. He had reached the chair next the throne, and he had but one step more to realize his single ambition; but he faltered as the chasm widened; he dreamed of ruling over fragments of a dissevered country, and in grand and gloomy perseverance, he labored until the shadows gathered into night.

"Winfield Scott was the chieftain of his age. The hero of two wars, he had reached the topmost round of military glory. The impetuous victor of Chippewa and Lundy's Lane perhaps dreamed only of twin stars, but the commander-in chief and the conqueror of Mexico accepted a higher ideal destiny. The stars paled when they were won, before one bright dream that was colossal in its freight of mingled joy and sorrow. At last, after many sickening days of hope deferred, a subordinate swept over him like the simoon of the desert. If you would know how much a child a man may be, summon your generous forbearance and read Scott's autobiography, where he tells why he was not President.—One great hope, one great infirmity; and one great grief sum up the sequel of his great distinction.

"'My life has been a failure,' were the sad words I heard uttered by Thaddeus Stevens when he was setting his house in order for the coming of the inexorable messenger. He was the great Commonor of the nation's sorest trial, and had witnessed the triumph of his earnest and consistent efforts for the disenthralment of the oppressed. He was content with braving popular ignorance and prejudice against education and freedom; but when he became the acknowledged leader of the House, and saw the substantial success of his cherished principles, his ideal life was not fulfilled.—To himself his life appeared as does the statue fashioned to rest upon some high pinnacle. It seems ungainly, ill-proportioned, and wanting in symmetry and harmony; but as it rises to the distance from which it was designed to be viewed, its awkward, shapeless lines disappear, and its grace and beauty win the admiring gaze of the multitude. He had his measure of infirmities, but there have been few so sincerely devoted to their convictions, and who would so willingly forego honors and applause for conscience sake. When posterity shall read of him, it will be as one of the grand central figures in the panorama of a nation's redemption, and his frailties will be unrecorded—the common tribute the historian pays to the fallibility of men whose names are immortal. I thought that he, of all our statesmen, had most nearly realized the hopes which inspired his noblest efforts; but he had learned the lesson that the ideal destiny of every life points to the unattainable. How much he dreamed, and how keenly lamented that he only dreamed, there are few prepared to tell.

"Look out over the countless throng that have dreamed, and are still dreaming, of the Presidency. The time was when only the wisest statesmen looked to the chair of Washington in their ideal achievements, but now, who that worships at the altar of ambition can plead exemption? Not sages and heroes alone now turn their anxious hopes toward the mighty sceptre of the first people of the world. Pretenders of every grade, who have climbed into position through slimy paths, swell their shame by indecent struggles to rule in dishonor. Their ideal is success, and I would not say how many before that fickle divinity. A few of them will win in their mean struggles, only to find their stolen honors turn to burning ashes on their brows. The broad path to the highest trust of the Republic is thickly strewn with skeletons of riven castles, and yet the throng that presses over them to the same sad destiny is countless as before. This one dream has unsettled the minds of sentiment traitors to themselves, to truth, and to their country; it bombarded Sumpter; it prolonged the bloody strife to destroy our nationality; and after the storm of battle ceased it came with horrible discord to lacerate the ghastly scars of war."

LOVE OF THE FRENCH SOLDIER FOR HIS MOTHER.—The love of a French soldier for his mother is proverbial;—it is a sentiment which survives every other; he can never be laughed out of it; and as long as he holds sacred he will always be reclaimable. There were many touching instances of this characteristic attachment during the Crimean campaign. "One day," says the aumonier, "after a desperate action a young sergeant of chasseurs was lying awaiting his death, for a ball had passed through his body. He knew his case was hopeless, and I poured the consolations of religion into his heart. 'Ah, father,' he said, 'the approach of death does not make me uneasy; I have just been reconciled to God; I do not fear his justice; I know how loving and merciful He is. That which fills me with anguish is'—and he paused for the tears rose to his eyes, and choked his utterance—"the thought of my poor mother. As long as I was receiving my pay, I always managed to put by something to send her. When I am no longer here, she will die with grief and misery;" and the tears flowed afresh, for he was praying for his mother. I recited with him a pator for her and with the words, "Give her this day her daily bread," on his lips, he calmly expired."

A traitorous woman avows the belief that if all the men were in one country and all the women in another, with a big river between them, lots of poor women would be drowned.

How Mr. Weed used to Work.

"T. B. T." writing on labor on a morning paper relates the following:

I met Mr. Thurlow Weed a day or two ago in the office of one of our leading papers, and I alluded to Mr. Jas. Harper, and mentioned his views as to the way for a workingman to acquire independence. Mr. Weed reflected a moment and then replied:—"It was most emphatically the rule of James Harper's whole life to study, not how little he could work, but how much. Mr. Harper and I learned our trade more than fifty years ago, of Mr. Seymour, then the leading printer of the city. He was our master, and was one of the best men that God ever made. He resided at No. 49 John st., and lived directly opposite his place of business. James and I were partners. The advantages of having a good partner, where you worked months together at the same press, must be apparent. Often, when we had done a good day's work, James Harper would say, "Thurlow, let's break the back of another token—just break its back." I would generally reluctantly consent just to break its back of the token, but James would beguile me, or laugh at my complaints, and never let me off until the token was completed, fair and square. It was a custom with us in Summer to do a fair half day's work before the other men and boy's got their breakfast. James and I would meet by appointment, in the gray of the morning, to go down to the street. We got the key to the premises by tapping the window, and Mr. Seymour would take it out from under his pillow and hand it to one of us through an opening in the blind. "A pressman," continued Mr. Weed, "who could do 20 or even ten per cent. more work than usual was always sure of a situation. James Harper, Tom Kennedy—long since dead—and I made the largest bills in the vicinity. We often earned as much as $14 per week—liberal wages when you remember that good board could be obtained for $10 per month.

As Mr. Weed uttered these words his eyes lit up with the fires that illuminated them in his youth, and there was that expression a moment about that showed he was for an instant living over again what were probably the pleasantest days of his varied and successful life.

In alluding to these "giants among us," let us ask: Does the modern system of labor, under the supposed ameliorations of eight-hour law, trades, unions, and constant strikes, promise to bring up any representatives from the ranks of the toiling millions, like the legitimate fruits of the old industries, as represented by Thurlow Weed, James Harper, and their coequals and associates, "self-made men?" Contrast the bitter spirit of antagonism that now prevails between the employed and Thurlow Weed's utterance with deep emotion in his voice, speaking of his master, who had been dead scores of years, as "one of the best men God ever made."

It is something for the youth of the country, thrown upon the world with no resources but their hands and brains, to figure themselves James Harper and a Thurlow Weed, tall, athletic, six feet high, splendid young men, of the best American type, shaking off sleep ere dawn, and hurrying to their business.

Human Life.

How truly does the journey of a single day, its changes and its hours, exhibit the history of a human life!—We rise up in a glorious freshness of a spring morning. The dews of night, those sweet tears of nature, are hanging from each bough and leaf, and reflecting the bright and myriad hues of the morning. Our hearts are beating with hope, our frames buoyant with health. We see no cloud, we fear no storm; and with our chosen and beloved companions clustering around us, we commence our journey. Step by step the scene becomes brighter.—A few of our companions have dropped away, but the multitude remaining, and the beauty of the scenery, their loss is unfelt. Suddenly we have entered upon a new country. The dews of the morning are exhaled by the fervor of the noon day sun; the friends that started with us are fast disappearing. Some remain, but their looks are cold and estranged; others have become weary and have laid down to rest; but new faces are smiling on us, new hopes beckoning us on. Ambition and fame are before us, but youth and affection are behind us. The scene is more glorious and brilliant, but the beauty and freshness of the morning have faded, and forever. But still our steps fail not, our spirits fail not. Onward and onward we go; the horizon of happiness and fame recedes as we advance to it; shadows begin to lengthen, and the chilling airs of evening are usurping the fervor of the noonday.—Still we press onward; the goal is not yet won, the haven not reached. The bright orb of Hope that has cheered us on is sinking in the west; our limbs begin to grow faint, and our hearts to grow sad; we turn to gaze upon the scenes we have passed, but the shadows of twilight have interposed their vail between us; we look around for the old and familiar faces, the companions of our travel, but we gaze in vain to find them; we have out-stripped them all in our race after pleasure, and, the phantom yet uncaught, in a land of strangers, in a sterile and inhospitable country, the midnight overtakes us—the dark and terrible night-time of death, and weary and heavy-laden we lie down to rest in the bed of the grave! Happy, thrice happy is he, who hath laid up treasures in himself for the distant and unknown to morrow.—Charleston.

Eating Men's Honor and Names.

If I were to take you to my house, and say that I had an exquisitely fat man, and wished you to join me in eating him, your indignation could be restrained by nothing. You would pronounce me to be crazy. There is not a man in New York so mean that he would not put me down a man who would propose to have a banquet from off a fellow-man, cutting steaks out of him and eating them. And that is nothing but feasting on the human body; while they all will sit down and take a man's soul and look for the tender loins, and invite their neighbors to little tit bits. They will take a man's honor and name, and broil them over the coals of their indignation, and fill the whole room with the aroma therefrom, and give their neighbors a piece, and wink as he tastes it. You all eat men up, and you are cannibals every one of you, and worse. You will be glad to get off at God's judgment seat with the plea, "I only ate the outside." You eat the souls, the finest elements of men. You are more than glad if you can whisper a word that is not derogatory to a neighbor, or his wife, or his daughter. And yet, by an oblique sentence, you make unfavorable impressions on the mind of the person addressed in respect to the subject of your criticism. "Ah!" he says, "I had not been informed;" and he goes to the next neighbor and says, "Mr. So-and-so says this and that about So-and so." The next neighbor says, "Indeed," and runs to his partner, and they both run to their wives; and the thing goes all over town. Everybody becomes an unpaid devil's mail carrier, and goes here and there bearing infernal messages. And what is the result? It is damnation to some poor creature that is unconscious, or that is innocent or that if guilty ought to be pitied and succored, rather than contemned. But ah! the morsel is too exquisite to be lost. Here is the soul of a person's hope for this world, and you have it on your fork, and you cannot refrain from tasting it, and giving it to some one else to taste. You are cannibals, eating men's honor and name, and rejoicing in it, and that, too, when you do not always know that the things charged against them are true; when in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, the probabilities are that they are not true.—Beecher.

Didn't Catch the Train.

The most difficult thing, says a cynical old bach, in the world for a woman to do is to get ready to go anywhere. And there is nothing a woman will resent quicker or more fiercely than an intimation that she may possibly miss the train. Our friends, Brayfogle, give us an instance of this. Mr. Brayfogle was supposed to take the ten o'clock train on the Bee line, to visit some relative in an anterior town.—Having suffered on previous occasions from injudicious suggestions, Bray thought for once he would let things take their own course. So he sipped his coffee and ate his eggs on toast, while madame curled and powdered and danced attendance on the looking glass and tied hair on the back of her head.

Then Bray sat by the stove an hour reading the morning paper, while the madame still continued to get ready. At last, just as he had reached the final paragraph, madame tied her bonnet strings under her chin, took one long, lingering, loving look at the image reflected in the glass, and announced:

"Well, my dear, I'm ready."

"Ready for what?" asked Bray, in well affected astonishment.

"To go to the depot, to be sure," said Mrs. Brayfogle, tartly.

"Oh!" said Bray, "I'd forgotten.—Well, madame," continued he, looking at his watch, "that train has been gone thirteen minutes. Just keep on your things, and you'll be ready for the train to-morrow morning."

We draw a vail over what followed. We are assured, however, that the next morning Mrs. B. was ready an hour ahead of time.

A DEVOTED WIDOW.— Lady Jane Franklin, widow of the distinguished Arctic explorer, Sir John Franklin, whose fate in the regions of eternal ice and snow the civilized world has long sought to discover, arrived in New York, Saturday, and became the guest of Mr. Grinnell, who fitted out an expedition at his own expense, to seek for the lost navigator. Years have past since Sir John entered the icy regions which were to be his tomb, his wife being at the time in the prime and beauty of fresh womanhood; she is now old and somewhat feeble, but the interest in her departed husband is as fresh with her as ever. She visited Alaska in that spirit of emotional romance which made her feel that in the icy atmosphere of that northern region she might more closely commune in soul with her long-lost partner. She returns to England in about two weeks.

☞ Every moment is a golden opportunity, and it we only regularly, habitually, gather up these moments, in process of time we shall have accomplished a work as great as those who were favored with clear months and years in which to work. Southey has proved this by calculating that in fifty years one may read and speak seven languages, by the devotion of only ten minutes each day to their acquirement. Thus Franklin, while working as a printer's boy, laid the foundations of his wondrous knowledge; and Elihu Burritt is a living testimony to the great things that may be done by the use of the moments—the constantly recurring small opportunities.—Quiver.

A Remarkable Case of Petrifaction.

A writer from Reading to the Pittsburgh Christian Radical, relates a remarkable and apparently well authenticated case of petrifaction of a human body:

Mrs. Catharine Hipple died at Monrovia, Kansas, on the 22d of Febuary, 1866, in the sixty-fifth year of her age. She was buried there on the 24th. In December 1868, her husband died at his home in Tremont, Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, requesting that his wife's remains be brought and buried by his side in Tremont Cemetery. On the 20th of Febuary, 1869, three years after the mother had been buried, her grave was opened, and after the removal of the covering of the outer coffin it was discovered that both coffins were filled with a dark colored water, and on raising the coffin to the surface of the earth they found it to be remarkably heavy.

The coffin was emptied of the water, and on examination of the body it was pronounced by those present completely petrified. The color of the face and hands was, perhaps, two shades darker than natural, and somewhat resembling a varnished surface. The features were as full and perfect as when she was alive, so that all who had known her, and came to see her remains, instantly recognized the well-remembered countenance. The body remained exposed to atmospheric influence for four days, in order to ascertain whether any change would take place, preparatory to its transportation eastward. No change whatever was manifest. The remains were roughly handled at all transfer points, were transported fourteen hundred miles by rail, and before the burial at Tremont the body was again examined, by Dr. Prevost of that place, and found to be thoroughly petrified, and in the same condition as it was when taken out of the grave.

Isn't it True.

Some cooks will throw out water in which meats have been boiled, without letting it cool to take off the fat.

Bits of meat are thrown out which would make hash meat or hash.

The flour is sifted in a careless manner and the bread pan left with the dough sticking to it.

Pie crust is laid by to sour, instead of making tarts for tea.

Cold pudding is considered good for nothing, when oftentimes it can be steamed for the next day.

Vegetables are thrown away that would warm for breakfast nicely.

Dish cloths are thrown where mice can destroy them.

The scrubbing brush is left in the water.

Tubs and barrels are left in the sun to dry and fall apart.

Nice handled knives are thrown into hot water.

Silver spoons are used to scrape kettles.

Cream is allowed to mould and spoil.

Coffee, tea, pepper, and spices are left to stand open and lose their strength.

The cork is left out of the molasses jug and the flies take possession.

Vinegar is drawn in a tin basin and allowed to stand until both basin and vinegar is spoiled.

THE SHUT TREE.—The accounts of travelers have made us well acquainted with the "bread tree" but it remained for the indefatigable Humboldt to discover in the wilds of South America a tree which produces ready made shirts. We copy his account of this tree:—

"We saw on the slope of the Cerra Duida," say M. Humboldt, "shirt trees fifty feet high. The Indians cut off cylindrical pieces two feet in diameter, from which they peel the red and fibrous bark, without making any longitudinal incision. The bark affords a sort of garment which resembles sacks of coarse texture, and without a seam. The upper opening serves for the head, and two latteral holes are cut to admit the arms. The natives wear these shirts of marina in the rainy season; they have the form of the ponchos and ruanos of cotton, which are so common in New Granada, at Quito, and in Peru."

Washerwomen are rarely needed in those regions. When the native wants a "change of linen" all he does is to doff the soiled one, climb a tree and pull down a bran new one and put it on!

A Beautiful Comparison.

Rev. Dewitt Talmadge, now of Brooklyn, closed a sermon as follows: "Seated at a country fireside, the other day, I saw the fire kindle, blaze and go out; and I gathered up from the hearth enough for my reflection. Our mortal life is just like the fire on that hearth. We put on the fresh fragment, and the flame bursts through, and up, and out, gay of sparkle, gay of flash, gay of crackle—emblems of boyhood. Then the fire reddens into coals. The heat is fiercer, and the more it is stirred the more it reddens. With sweep of flame it clears its way till all the hearth glows with intensity—emblems of full manhood. Then comes the whiteness in the coals. The flickering shadows have died along the walls.—The faggots drop apart. The household hover over the expiring embers. The last breath of smoke has been lost up the chimney. Fire is out,—Shovel up the white remains, Ashes!"

It is difficult to conceive anything more beautiful than the reply given by one in affliction when he was asked how he bore it so well: "It lightens the stroke," he said, "to draw nearer to Him who handles the rod."

J. SYLVANUS BLAIR,
Chairman Rep. Co. Com.

☞ Andrew Johnson has declined to be a candidate for Congress in Tennessee. An exchange wickedly suggests that the reason he declines is he wants to commence again as Alderman.

☞ The "White Men's Party" met in Convention in this place on Tuesday of last week, but adjourned over until to-day, Tuesday, without making any nominations. Some thirty delegates were in attendance.

Our Ticket Complete.

The conferences have met and have given us as our candidates, for Congress, D. J. Morrell, of Cambria county; for Senator, D. Walker Woods, of Mifflin county, Wm. P. Wilson, of Centre county; for Assembly, David Etnier, of Huntingdon county, T. F. McCoy, of Mifflin county. With our local county nominations, the ticket is now complete, and it will be for the Republican voters of the districts to say by what majorities the gentlemen shall be elected. The ticket is not as we would have made it, but it is the ticket nominated and will be supported by the Republican party.

Minority County Convention.

The minority county convention assembled at Reading on Wednesday last, and remained in session one day. A number of resolutions were passed, of which the following is the substance:

That the practice of submitting all matters of local legislation to the exclusive control of local Representatives has practicably placed the local, political and business interests of minority constituencies at the mercy of majority local representatives, and has afforded such a continued series of wrongs and petty oppression, as loudly calls for reform;

That there is no other remedy except in a system which will secure to each local minority, its proportional share of local representation; that such minority representation will lessen unjust partisanship, and promote greater purity in legislation.

The meeting was addressed by Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, the champion of the system of cumulative or free voting. He explained the system to be the right to distribute or concentrate the vote of an individual among the candidates presented for his choice, and contended that in Courts of Justice, the Judges should be of different political complexions, so that when a citizen went into court he could see a political friend upon the bench. A letter was read from John W. Forney, Esq., who also favors the system as adopted in Illinois.

THE WAR ENDED.

At last the welcome news has reached us that the terrible war in Europe between France and Prussia has come to an end by the surrender of the French army under Marshal MacMahon to King William, and the arrest of Emperor Napoleon. A month and a half gone, but not without witnessing a large and well-contested battle-field on the western border of France, where now lies thousands of good soldiers, a sacrifice to the ambition of war thirsty monarchs. How many have been killed and wounded in that short month (the battle of Saarbruck occurred on the 2d of August) has not been told; but enough have fallen to blast the name of the Emperor, who has met the fate he so justly deserved. Napoleon, humiliated by his defeat, scorned by his countrymen, denounced by the people of every clime, may now live in obscurity to count the cost of the struggle he precipitated, and ruminate over the folly of kings seeking to make their name imperishable on the gory field of battle. And was not the Prussian king equally anxious to have his posterity honored on the same bloody arena? What did his message concerning "Our Fritz," the Crown Prince, mean? Was he not anxious to spread broadcast his deeds of daring on the battle field, so as to add new lustre to the name of the present dynasty? The king of Prussia may glory too much over the downfall of Napoleon, and if his ambition is not tempted to try other fields, it will be well with him and his people.

There are over one hundred ladies announced to take the field as lecturers the coming season. It was left for free America to test the ability of women in this field, and with such favor do they meet that we would not be surprised to hear of a larger number in future years. Of course, the most of them have the one topic "Women's Rights," and if the naughty men do not get enough of Candle lectures this winter, it will be because they won't listen to what the fair orators have to say.

☞ Our candidates for State Senator are D. Walker Woods, of Lewistown, and Wm. P. Wilson, of Bellefonte—both able lawyers and very respectable gentlemen. Gen. McCoy of Lowistown, one of our candidates for the Legislature was one of our candidates last year, and with Mr. Swoope, defeated. He is a good man, and with Mr. Etnier, cannot fail to be elected this year.

☞ The Democratic Congressional Conference met at Altoona on Friday, and nominated R. Milton Speer, of this place, to run against D. J. Morrell.

R. Bruce Petrikin and Dr. Crawford of Juniata county are the Democratic nominees for the State Senate, and Harry McAteer and Mr. Rohrer, of Mifflin, Legislative candidates.

☞ Hon. John Covode has been re-elected Chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Congressional Conference.

HUNTINGDON, Aug. 30, 1870.

Agreeable to notice, the conferees of the 17th Congressional District met at the Jackson House, at 1 o'clock, p. m., the following conferees being present:

Cambria county—James Cooper, H. A. Boggs, A. G. Mullin.
Blair county—S. R. Schmucker, John Loudon, D. T. Caldwell.
Huntingdon county—G. W. Johnston, Gen. S. M. Green, H. Clay Marshall.
Mifflin county—Gen. J. P. Taylor, Jos. A. Major, L. L. Ellsworth.

On motion of Gen. S. M. Green, who acted as Chairman of last Conference meeting, G. W. Johnston, of Huntingdon, was called to the Chair, and D. T. Caldwell, of Blair, appointed Secretary.

On motion of Gen. J. P. Taylor, of Mifflin, Hon. D. J. Morrell, of Cambria, was declared the unanimous choice of this District, as the nominee for Congress.

In addition to the resolutions formally adopted, the convention unanimously put forth the following

ADDRESS.

In presenting the Hon. Daniel J. Morrell to the voters of the 17th Congressional District, as a candidate for re-election to the House of Representatives, the members of the Conference feel that they are giving effect to the true theory of Republican Government.

Signifying his wish to devote himself to his private business, and refusing to make any effort to secure a renomination—leaving that question entirely to the people — they have in every county of the District, with a full knowledge and appreciation of his public services, called upon him to forego his own wishes and again give them the benefit of his industry, experience and practical ability, by serving them for another term in the National Congress.

Such an endorsement has far more significance than any formal resolutions we could pass.

Upon the record of these public services, we place him before the people in response to their own call.—They have found him the tried and faithful friend of the government during the dark years when armed treason sought refuge and allies in its counsels; the constant supporter of the nation's credit against all attempts at repudiation; the able and efficient advocate of the interests of American labor in all its branches, mechanical, manufacturing, commercial and agricultural; the fearless expositor of the fallacies and misrepresentations of the agents of "free trade" seeking to deprive the American laborer of employment, and the farmer of his home markets without restriction to the products of the pauper labor of Europe; the friend of President Grant's administration of all measures by which it is relieving the people of the burdens of taxation, and gradually paying the National debt; the true representative ever at his post and watchful of the interests of his constituents; and as such we believe they will not only secure their own interests but confer a benefit upon the country at large by his triumphant re-election.

The following Resolutions, offered by Gen. S. M. Green, were unanimously adopted:

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That the co-operation of President Grant in all measures tending to elevate and strengthen the enslaved and oppressed of all nations justly entitles him to the support of the good and true men of all parties.

Resolved, That the administration of President Grant meets with the hearty approval of the Republican party of this District, and that it unequivocally commends the economical policy pursued in financial affairs.

Resolved, That our confidence in the statesmanship and patriotism of Hon. John Scott, is strengthened by his brief record in the United States Senate, he having proven himself a great champion of the best interests of our Commonwealth, and by his earnest and eloquent appeals in behalf of American industry he has won the respect of all right thinking men.

Resolved, That, while recognizing the justice and wisdom of neutrality by our Government in the deplorable struggle now waging between France and Prussia—two nations with which our own is on most friendly terms, we nevertheless cannot refrain from giving expression to the earnest hope that it may result in the spread of Republican principles and the elevation of the people.

On motion, adjourned.

G. W. JOHNSTON, Chairman.
D. T. CALDWELL, Secretary.

Deaths by Lightning.

Additional facts about the destructive lightning stroke at Kingston, N. Y., on September 1st, have just been published. The first bolt that killed any one came at eight o'clock. Five persons were immediately slain and in the course of the following day five more died from injuries they received at the time. Forty persons have taken shelter from the storm under a small willow tree. This tree was next struck, but at about four feet from the ground the lightning left it and killed three of the party, and stunned all. It at once leaped to a spot about fifty feet to the south and killed two persons of another party. One of the most curious things about the whole affair was that only colored people were fatally injured. A white man who was in the crowd of forty was knocked twenty feet from where he was standing, and his umbrella was torn to stripes, but he sustaining no further injury. A boy was standing near him had an Indin rubber ring on his finger with a small iron shield rivited to it. The shield and rivet were melted and his shoes torn off and yet he escaped with his life. The statement that the large circus tent was struck was a mistake, though all who were inside were more or less affected by the lightning, while the beasts were terribly excited and made most hideous yells and cries.

Three Men Killed by Lightning.

During the terrific thunder storm of Monday afternoon, a terrible calamity occurred at Freeport, Armstrong county. A gentleman named Groeing, with his two sons, Louis and Charles, in company with the Sexton, visited a church yard for the purpose of selecting a spot in which to bury a brother of Mr. Groeing's, then lying dead in his house. Upon the storm arising, the party sought shelter under umbrellas, and had been but a moment grouped together when a fearful bolt of lightning struck them, instantly killing the Sexton, Hines, and the two brothers. Mr. Groeing was stunned, but when he awoke to a consciousness of the terrible calamity which had befallen him, his feelings can be better imagined than written. All the parties are well known citizens, and the town is mourning for this complication of misfortunes which has fallen upon one of its most esteemed families.

The Great Canada Fires.

A correspondent writes to the Hamilton Times: "I came out this morning from Ottowa. The country on the entire line of the Ottawa and Prescott railway is on fire on both sides, all the way from Ottawa to Prescott. Nothing can surpass the gloom which has settled over Central Canada at the terrible visitation through which this part of the country is now passing.—No one in this district has seen the sun for days. Some idea may be formed of the terrible magnitude of the conflagration now in progress when you consider that it has now overrun, and in many places totally devastated, an area of at least over two thousand four hundred square miles. Of the amount of damage done even the faintest estimate cannot be formed.

I passed through two miles of railway in the township of Osgoode on Saturday. The flames nearly reached the windows of the cars in some place, and some panes of glass were broken by the heat along the way. I have seen farmers sitting dejected and in a state of suspension with the smoke from the smouldering remains of their devastated farms and homesteads. The worst feature is that the soil itself is destroyed in many places by the fire.

AN ODD FELLOW DISAPPEARS.—Cho razin Lodge, No. 507, I. O. of O. F., of Titusville, desires to ascertain the whereabouts of Jonathan Locke, a member of that lodge, who mysteriously disappeared from Titusville on the 6th of July. He was seen at Parker's Landing on the 7th and at Oil City on the 8th, since which time he has not been heard of. He is 56 years of age; has light blue eyes; weight from 120 to 125 pounds; has but three fingers on the left hand, the little finger having been taken off when quite young. He is bald-headed and has a scar on his right cheek. Any information will be thankfully received by the above-named lodge. Newspapers throughout the State will confer a favor by copying this notice.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—It is now impossible to reach the Corps Legislatif, owing to the immense crowds surrounding the building. It is reported that a vote on the decheance (or forfeiture of the throne by the Bonaparte family) has been carried by yeas 185, nays none.

Great Prussian Victory.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—3 A. M.—The Tribune, Times and Herald have all specials from London confirming the defeat of MacMahon by Prince Frederick Charles, near Beaumont, twenty-five miles from Mezieres. This report comes not only from special correspondents in the field, but from an official despatch of the Prince, who says, after two days' hard fighting, he attacked and drove MacMahon back towards the Belgian frontier and kept up pursuit until late at night. The battle-field was so extensive that he had not time to estimate the large number of guns and spoils captured. The French encampment was among the trophies. He was driven toward Sedan. French advices say MacMahon was at Mezieres.

The Surrender of MacMahon's Army.

LONDON, September 3.—A despatch from Sedan via Bouillon, September 2, midnight, says the die is cast so far as MacMahon's army and fortunes of the empire are concerned. All is over with France. I have already telegraphed briefly facts of battles of Tuesday and Wednesday, each day's fighting being terrific. The results at the close of each day were favorable to the Prussians. Thursday at daylight showed the French forces reinforced and occupying a strong elevated position from Bazilier extending down the railroad to Douzy, and thence to Nancy on the line of the Monson railroad. At five o'clock the Prussians recommenced the battle, making a simultaneous attack on the French front and left flank. The fighting was at first confined to the artillery, both armies firing incessantly, the French evidently having a weaker force of guns than the Prussians. At noon a fierce attack was made by the Prussian infantry at Danzy, with the object of weakening the French center, but, after tremendous fighting, the Prussians fell back. A pause seemed to take place at one o'clock, the firing being less incessant, but was only a prelude of yet fiercer assaults. At two o'clock a simultaneous movement was made along the whole Prussian line, the infantry charging on the French guns.

At three o'clock the French lines, which had been previously firm, wavered, and immediately thereafter broke. The battle then became a rout. MacMahon is reported seriously wounded. The roads now present a terrible aspect. The French left everything, firing in every direction and throwing their arms. The Prussians pressed forward, bent upon cutting off their retreat toward Belgium. The Prussian troops used the bayonet with terrible effect. Night closed on the rout and pursuit, leaving the Prussians gathering in large numbers around Sedan. The Emperor remained at Sedan throughout the battle.

At half-past two o'clock a message was sent to the Emperor at his headquarters, advising him to fly to Belgium, but he was too ill to undertake the journey.

This morning the Prussians prepared to attack Sedan, which was not in condition to resist. At twelve a party of officers, headed by General Wimpffen, left Sedan, bearing a flag of truce. It was received by the advanced guard and conducted to the Prussian headquarters, where the General formally surrendered the French army and fortress to King William. The French army also bore a letter from the Emperor Napoleon to King William, stating that he desired to surrender himself, not having any command. The formal capitulation took place at half past one o'clock. It is said the Emperor will be sent under a strong escort to Madgeburg, but his destination is a secret. A large number of French escaped into Belgium.

AGENTS Wanted for SATAN IN SOCIETY

A NEW BOOK of the greatest interest and importance written from a high moral and physiological standpoint by an eminent physician and medical professor, it shows how Satan is working out his subtle and dangerous designs through our most sacred domestic and social plantations. Fire-minded, but outspoken and aggressive, the author handles the delicate subjects treated of without gloves, but in such a manner as not to minister to a prurient curiosity. The Physical Regeneration of the Race, is a subject justly enlisting the interest and sympathy of all true philanthropists, and this book, it is believed, will contribute to that end just in proportion as it has readers. AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE

To the Republican voters of Huntingdon county:

I announce myself as an "Independent Candidate" for Associate Judge, and ask the support of all honest and Independent men who hate rings and "ring" candidates. Having stood by the Republican party from its birth up until its betrayal of the people, in the fraudulent adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment; I feel that I should have some claims upon the true men of that party.

I stand upon the Chicago platform, upon which Gen. Grant was elected; but I utterly repudiate the fraud and outrage by which the right of negroes to vote has been declared a part of the fundamental law of the land, blotting out a part of the Constitution of our own State, which as officers we are sworn to support.

If elected, I will endeavor to discharge my duties faithfully, and I flatter myself thatmy profession in life has not unfitted me for the position, besides, it would often be found a great convenience to have an Associate Judge residing in Huntingdon.

CADETSHIPS.—In accordance with the announcement recently published, an examination for Cadetships at West Point and Annapolis, was held at Altoona on the 25th ult., before the following board: General John P. Taylor, of Mifflin county; Dr. Sidney Thompson, of Huntingdon county; Prof. John Miller, Supt. of public schools of Blair county; Geo. W. Cope, Supt. of Cambria county, and Rev. Dr. Shadrach of Altoona. Only eight applicants presented themselves. The Board concurred in the following decision:

ALTOONA, PA., August 25, 1870.

HON. D. J. MORRELL—Dear Sir: We the Board of Examiners appointed by you for the purpose of examining the applicants for cadetships, respectfully report that we have held the examination with the result given below.

There were seven applicants: H. S. Berlin, of Johnstown; Henry Henshy, of Fostoria; K. D. Ramey, of Altoona; Wm. R. A. Rooney, of Hollidaysburg; M. H. C. Weaver, of Huntingdon; M. W. Sills, of Lewistown; and Wm. A. Mann, of Altoona. Charles B. Brisbin, of Lewistown, did not attend until after the examination had been in progress for some time. He was examined by Dr. Thompson, and having been pronounced physically incompetent, did not wish to enter the class

Of the seven whom we examined, we take pleasure in recommending for the military cadetship, H. S. Berlin, of Johnstown; and for the naval cadetship, Wm. R. A. Rooney, of Hollidaysburg. As alternates, we recommend for the military cadetship Wm. A. Mann, of Altoona, who was sixteen on July 31st. If he is not eligible, we recommend Henry Henshy, of Fostoria. And for the naval cadetship, M. H. C. Weaver, of Huntingdon.

J. P. TAYLOR,
SIDNEY THOMPSON,
JOHN MILLER,
GEO. W. COPE,
W. SHADRACH,
Board.

The successful candidates, Mr. Berlin and Mr. Rooney, have been recommended for appointment, and in the event of their failure to pass a satisfactory examination at West Point and Annapolis, respectively, their alternates, Mr. Mann and Mr. Weaver, will be recommended for appointment.

THE FAIR.—On account of the State, Bellefonte and Altoona Fairs occurring on the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th October, the Committee of arrangements of the Huntingdon Fair have wisely changed the days for holding our Co. Fair to the 27th, 28th, 29th, and 30th September. The Society in selecting four days for the fair did a good thing, as heretofore visitors had really only one day in which to see the full display—the first and third days being occupied in putting in and taking the articles away. Now that there will be two days, visitors can come with the satisfaction of knowing that they can have a good look at every thing on exhibition.

The Fair will be held in a field south of town, and the respective committees are diligently at work, erecting the houses, making the course, and effecting all the preliminaries for a successful Fair. The List of Premiums will be published next week, and we hope and expect it will be so arranged as to give general satisfaction. The object of the Fair should be to encourage industry, promote agriculture, and induce honorable competition in all branches. Let each one strive to do the best they can, and bring what they can, and the Fair will be a success.

Alexandria, August 9, 1870.

WHY IS IT?—For several weeks past we have heard complaints that money sent by mail to individuals residing in this place has not reached them. A gentleman on Broad Top assured us that he sent us a sum of money for subscription, in a letter, but we neither received the letter or the money. We also learn that another individual in this place was sent ten dollars from an eastern station but he never received it; and also a larger sum sent to a lady in West Huntingdon never reached her. We hope to hear no more complaints in the future; but if it continues, measures will be taken to see where the "leak" is.—The safest plan to pursue is to get a money order or registered letter.

☞ There is a certain gentleman in our town who notwithstanding he has his name in the papers every week still persists in making the printers publish it, week after week. There is no use resisting his appeals, when he knows it pays to keep it there. We refer to Mr. Luke Reilley, the baker, whose bread and cakes are a luscious morsel, and whose candies and syrups are unexcelled.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

[XXVIII. CONTINUED]

GRAIN-GROWING—EAST AND WEST.

The "Pine Barrens" of New-Jersey are a marine deposit of several hundred feet in depth, mainly sand, with which more or less clay is generally intermingled, while there are beds and even broader stretches of this material nearly or quite pure; the clay is sometimes underlying the sand at a depth of 10 to 30 or 40 inches. Vast deposits of muck or leaf-mold, often of many acres in extent and from two to twenty feet in depth, are very common; so that hardly any portion of the dry or sandy land is two miles distant from one or more of them, while some is usually much nearer; and half the entire region is underlaid by at least one stratum of the famous marl (formed of the decomposed bones of gigantic marine monstors long ago extinct) which has already played so important and beneficent a part in the renovation and fertilization of large districts in Monmouth, Burlington, Salem, and other counties.

Let us suppose now that a farmer of ample means and generous capacity should purchase four hundred acres of these "barrens," with intent to produce therefrom, not sweet potatoes, melons, and the "truck" to which Southern Jersey is so largely devoted, but substantial Grain and meat; and let us see whether the enterprise would probably pay.

Let us not stint the outlay, but, presuming that tract to be eligibly located on a railroad not too distant from some good marl-bed, estimate as follows:

Purchase-money of 400 acres at $25 per acre	$10,000
Clearing, grubbing, fencing and breaking up ditto at $20 per acre, over and above the proceeds of the wood	8,000
One thousand bushels of best marl per acre, at 6 cents per bushel delivered	24,000
One hundred loads of swamp Muck, per acre at 50 cents per load	20,000
Fifty bushels (unslaked) of Oyster-shell Lime (to compost with the Muck), per acre, at 25 cents per bushel, delivered	5,000
One hundred tuns of bone Flour at $50 per tun	5,000
[Net cost, $180 per acre.] Total	$72,000

I believe that this tract, divided by light fences into four fields of 100 acres each, and seeded in rotation to Corn, Wheat, Clover and other grasses, would produce fully 60 bushels of Corn and 30 of Wheat per acre, with not less than 3 tuns of good Hay, and that by cutting, steaming, and feeding the stalks and straw on the place, not pasturing, but keeping up the stock, and feeding them, as indicated in a former chapter of these essays, and selling their product in the form of Milk, Butter, Cheese and Meat a greater profit would be realized than could be from a like investment in Iowa or Kansas. The soil is warm, readily frees itself, or is freed, from surplus water; is not addicted to weeds; may be plowed at least 200 days a year; may be sowed or planted in the Spring, when Minnesota is yet solidly frozen; while the crop, early matured, is on hand to take advantage of any sudden advance in the European or our own seaboard markets.—Labor, also, is cheaper and more readily procured in the neighborhood of this great focus of immigration than it is or can be in the West; and our capable farmers may take their pick of the workers thronging hither from Europe, at the moment of their landing on our shore. Of course, the owner of such an estate as I have roughly out-lined, would be likely to keep a part of his purchase in timber, improving the quality thereof by cutting out the less desirable trees, trimming up the rest, and planting new ones among them; and he would be almost certain to devote some part of his farm annually to the growth of Roots, Vegetables, and Fruits. But I have aimed to show only that he would grow grain here at a profit, and I think I have succeeded. His 60 bushels of corn (shelled) per acre could be sold at his crib, one year with another, for 60 silver dolars; and he need seldom wait a month after husking it for customers who would gladly take his grain and pay the money for it. This would be just about double what the Iowa or Missouri farmer can except to average for his Corn. The abundant fodder would also be worth in New-Jersey at least double its value in Iowa; and I judge that the farmer able to buy, prepare, fertilize, and cultivate 1,200 acres of the Jersey "barrens," could make more than thrice the profit to be realized by the owner of 400 acres. He would plow and seed as well as thrash, shell, cut stalks and straw, and prepare the food of his animals wholly by steam-power, and would soon learn to cultivate a square mile at no greater expense than is now involved in the perfect tillage of 200 acres.

This essay is not intended to prove that Grain is not or may not be profitably cultivated at the West, nor that it is unadvisable for Eastern farmers to migrate thither in order so to cultivate it. What I maintain is, that Wheat, Indian Corn, and nearly all our great food staples, may also be profitably produced on the seaboard, and that thousands of square miles now nearly or quite unproductive may be wisely and profitably devoted to such production.

TO THE LADIES!

The subscribers have recently discovered a new article—the

ESSENCE OF STARCH.

In calling the attention of the ladies to our Starch they will find that it economizes labor, produces a

BEAUTIFUL GLOSS,

Much superior to common starch, and easier to iron. In fact if you want a beautiful gloss on your skirt, or your husband's shirt or collar, procure a box of our Essence of Starch. The cost is trifling, only 15 cents a box.

Try a box and be convinced. Every Family should have a box of the Essence of Starch. For sale by all Grocers and dealers in the United States. Manufactured only by SMITH, HAMMON & CO., sole proprietors, No. 1113 Harmer street, Philadelphia.

☞For sale at MASSEY & CO'S. Enterprise Headquarters. fob9

IMPORTANT TO SOLDIERS.

All Cavalry Line officers who were in the service between July 22d 1861 and July 17th 1862 are entitled to allowance for use and risk of horses, amounting for the whole time to about $150; for a less time, to a proportionate amount. Discharges must accompany claims.

Heirs of those entitled but who were killed or died in the service, and the arrears of pay having been collected, are only required to give a power of Attorney.

Persons having claims of this kind, or any other claims against the Government can have them promptly collected by applying in person or by letter to

ADDRESS

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE CASES REQUIRE PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick scum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that these bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

DISEASES OF THESE ORGANS REQUIRE THE USE OF A

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the west of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by SOLDIERS' HEIRS, ATTENTION!

The act of Congress approved March 2, 1867, gives to Heirs of Soldiers who died prisoners of war, or the time the soldier was so held a prisoner, at the rate of twenty-five cents per day, to be paid in the following order: 1st. To the widow, if unmarried; 2d. To the children; 3d. To the parents, to both jointly if they are living, if either is dead, to the survivor; 4th. To the brothers and sisters.

COMMUTATION FOR RATIONS,

The act of February 28, 1867, provides for the refunding of the $300 Commutation Money, where the same person was again drafted, and was required to enter the service or furnish a substitute.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.

The act of March 2, 1867, also makes provisions for the payment of the

$100 ADDITIONAL BOUNTY

to such soldiers as have accidentally lost their discharges

All persons having any claims under any of the above mentioned Acts, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, can have them promptly collected, by addressing the undersigned. Information and advice cheerfully given to soldiers or their friends, free of charge.
